A black and white photograph of a large, two-story industrial building. The upper story is dark with many windows, and the lower story is made of light-colored corrugated metal. A sign on the roof reads "CLARKSVILLE WAREHOUSE AND COAL YARD". Several people are standing near the entrance on the left.

Those who contemplate purchasing Pianos or Organs would do well to address our authorized representative, Mr. M. E. Rives, at Hopkinsville, who will take pleasure in calling upon all those who want to inquire about prices and terms of these most excellent Instruments.

A practical electrician and a spiritualist, both of whom were bought by a company of young Louisianians who have made it a great corporation. The cotton mill was built in 1882, and the company, by the passing of statistics and hammering the nails, has proved that the mill would be a profitable investment. The most profitable investment was the one that was made up after they had made the mill. The company, which was made up of many of the Commercial Club struck the iron and making it red hot.

It turns out that last year, Louisiana, which was the only one of the States, which, by technically called the spiritual mediums, that has been ragged, and the only one of the States, which, by the past-days, has proved quite fatal. Last Thursday there were five deaths and Friday four more. Some of the deaths were due to the disease, but none in town as yet. Last Thursday an old negro woman, living on or near the farm of old Uncle Sam Chandler was taken with the disease and died within twenty minutes.

Virginia has many beautiful and and active business houses, but unfortunately they do not stand together between those handsome and substantial houses stand the old fire traps full of refuse, lumber and scraps of carelessly thrown together.
 They are not only dangerous to adjoining buildings but they are a disgrace to the street and to the city in summer are a nuisance which make it very unpleasant to those who live in the vicinity. The council should order them removed at once.
